Part I - Ideas

Here follows a quick description of what the content in first part is about. This is typically followed by a text that tries to grasp the area and domain covered by the eBook in a little more detail here in this page, before embarking on the further content, piece by piece followed then, onwards - divided in “Idea Elements”.

The content of this template should not be filled with a lot of lorem ipsum fake latin words, coming to think of it. Why should it? That's boring. You can write your own little content and repeat it to fill the space, right? So be it. Whatever to still support the purpose of this template to get the idea of the form and format of this publication series.

Sustainopreneurship is the art of getting people to care about more than their own butt, garden and life while at the same time making a living.

It needs to be branded, financed, networked and so on. And it can typically occur in some dedicated areas such as energy, trade, information/communication technology etc. With innovative behaviour!

For the big elephants, catchy acronyms such as CSR and SRI are relevant – corporate and financial sustainability. Or so. And so on.
